

Dr. Leticia Fonseca
Deputy Executive Secretary
Executive Secretary Brazil
Inter-American Coalition for Regulatory Convergence, Medical Technology Sector

Leticia a professional with more than 21 years of experience in medical devices regulations, having worked for 14 years at The Brazilian Health Regulatory Agency (Anvisa), 13 of them as manager of the in vitro diagnostic products area. Her career involves experience in people management, in the development of regulations, in processes related to pre-market authorization of medical devices, especially in vitro diagnostic products, in auditing companies for certification of good manufacturing practices, and participation in national and international meetings to discuss issues related to medical devices products.

She currently serves as Executive Director of the Latin American Alliance for the Development of In Vitro Diagnostics) – ALADDIV – a non-profit organization that acts in favor of regulatory convergence and patient access to innovative technologies in the field of in vitro diagnostics.

She holds a degree in Biological Sciences and a post-graduation in Biological Sciences - area of concentration Molecular Biology, both from the University of Brasilia, a master's degree in Materials Science and Engineering from the Federal University of Campina Grande.